

Bruno S. Sergi

E-mail: bsergi@fas.harvard.edu

<http://daviscenter.fas.harvard.edu/about-us/people/bruno-sergi>

Skype address: b_sergi

Bruno S. Sergi serves as an instructor at Harvard University, where he teaches “The Economics of Emerging Markets—Asia and Eastern Europe” and “Political Economy of Russia and China.” Dr. Sergi serves as Center Associate of the Davis Center for Russian and Eurasian Studies at Harvard University. Concurrently, Dr. Sergi teaches “International Economics” and “Political Economy and International Finance” at the University of Messina.

Dr. Sergi has performed extensive consulting services for the private and government sectors. Since 2009 he has coached two networks of trade-union economic experts: the SEE TUs Economic Experts’ Network and the NIS TUs Economic Experts’ Network, both of which are under the framework of the Pan-European Regional Council of the International Trade Union Confederation. He has done research at a number of national central banks in Western and Eastern Europe (e.g., National Bank of Poland, Czech National Bank, and the National Bank of Belgium).

He has taught and done research at New York University, the IMF, CERC-University of Melbourne, the University of Latvia, Prague International Business School, City University (Slovakia), ISM University of Management and Economics (Lithuania), Warsaw School of Economics, University “Aleksandër Moisiu” – Fastip (Albania) and the European Trade Union Institute in Brussels. He has been an Honorary Fellow of the School of Social and Political Sciences at the University of Melbourne (2010-2011).

Dr. Sergi’s extensive academic career, publications, and advisory roles with the leading international institutions have established him as a premier expert, frequent guest, contributor, and a commentator on the matters of contemporary developments in political economy and emerging markets in a wide range of media.

Sergi has authored or co-authored books and journal articles on transition economics, international macroeconomics, and global business, the most recent book titles being Economic Dynamics in Transitional Economies (Routledge 2003); Global Business Management (Ashgate 2007); The Political Economy of Southeast Europe from the 1990 to the Present (Continuum 2008); Misinterpreting Modern Russia: Western Views of Putin and His Presidency (Continuum 2009); and Cross-Cultural Management: Discovering a Mosaic of Words and Concepts (McGraw-Hill 2012).

His current research interests include international macroeconomics and the political economy of transition countries. He has published extensively in a wide spectrum of scholarly journals such as Comparative Economic Studies; Eastern European Economics; European Journal of Development Research; International Labour Review; Journal of Economic Issues; Journal of Management Development; Journal of Post Keynesian Economics; Management Decision; Thunderbird International Business Review. He has also published numerous chapters in edited volumes.

He is the founder and Editor-in-Chief of International Journal of Trade and Global Markets; International Journal of Economic Policy in Emerging Economies and International Journal of Monetary Economics and Finance. Starting Spring 2017, he will serve as an Associate Editor of The American Economist (an official publication of Omicron Delta Epsilon, The International Honor Society in Economics).

Dr. Sergi holds a M.Sc. and M.Phil. in economics from the University of London and a Ph.D. in economics from the University of Greenwich Business School – London.